Workers Rights

With elections approaching, some left-wing trade union leaders are mounting a campaign against the British National Party. Roger Lyons, President of the Trades Union Congress, and leaders of the main teaching union the NUT, have already declared their opposition to the BNP and others are set to follow. Trade Union leaders are traditionally out of touch with their rank and file membership, and choose to ignore the fact that tens of thousands of trade unionists already vote for the BNP. The trouble is union leaders tend to forget that trade unions were originally formed to protect workers rights, and that includes the right to vote for whoever they please.

Who Cares?

The Jewish para-military group, the Community Security Trust, claims that anti-Semitic incidents in Britain rose by 7% in 2003. The CST claims that a total of 375 incidents were reported to them last year, of which 54 incidents were involving physical assaults. All very interesting reading but, can anybody tell me how many Christians were assaulted last year? Or does nobody care?

People Who Live in Greenhouses ...

While "Torah" Party leader, Michael Howard was condemning the BNP as thugs and criminals, a Conservative councillor was appearing in court on charges of election rigging. Anthony Bays, a Tory councillor in Guilford, Surrey for 25 years pleaded guilty to charges that he tried to fiddle a council election by collecting ballot forms from voters and altering them to appear that they had voted for him. The case, at Reading Crown Court was adjourned for pre-sentencing reports. It seems that it is not just the BNP that has members with criminal records.

New Europa

I must admit to having mixed feelings over the newly expanded Europe. Like most Britons I cannot see how we can hope to accommodate the tens, or hundreds of thousands of Europeans expected to come to Britain to live and work. But, as a racial-nationalist who has lived through decades of non-white immigration into Britain, should I now welcome an influx of white immigrants most of whom are firmly anti-Communist having experienced the horrors of Marx and Lenin first hand?

Israeli State Terrorism Threatens Middle-East Peace

"Israel has a right to defend itself" said George Bush in the aftermath of the murder of Sheik Yassin, by the Israeli military. Defend itself, by blowing to bits a partially-sighted, wheelchair bound quadriplegic leaving a Mosque after prayers. Defend itself by using a US provided Apache helicopter gunship to fire missiles at a car carrying Dr Abdul Rantissi, an unarmed Palestinian leader. "Self-defence" or "State Terrorism"?

While these "targeted assassinations" attracted condemnation from most of the civilised world, (Britain, Germany and Romania abstained in a United Nations resolution condemning the murders) the real State terrorism often goes unreported. Therefore ignored by politicians who are attracted only by the amount of media coverage they can get by condemning unpopular acts. The recent meeting between Bush and the Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon, at which Bush gave approval for the Israelis to steal even more Palestinian land via their West Bank settlements was well reported and commented on by the World's press but, who reported that on the day before Sheik Yassin was murdered Israeli occupation forces killed 5 Palestinians including the mother of 9 children and destroyed their houses in Abasan? Who reported that on the same day Bush was betraying the Palestinians in the deal with Sharon, soldiers from the Israeli army indiscriminately opened fire on a house in Khan Yunis shooting dead a 12-year old Palestinian girl?

Another case of self-defence?

Bush seems to have forgotten the terror tactics of his Israeli friends in murdering US citizen Rachael Corrie, deliberately crushed by an IDF bulldozer, or the murder of unarmed peace activist, Tom Hurndall, shot by an Israeli army sniper. The murder of Rachael Corrie Were these also cases of self-defence?

Israeli state terrorism has many faces. On the basis of the need for "self-defence" Israel has built a wall of the magnitude that the East German communists would have been proud of. The purpose of the wall is to separate Israeli and Palestinian territory, but the entire new boundary comprises of land that once belonged to the Palestinians. Palestinian farmers are terrorised by IDF forces into giving up access to land that was farmed by generations of Palestinians. Those who wish to travel from one part of Palestine to another must first apply for permission to travel from the Israeli authorities. Those who attempt to travel without permission face beatings or imprisonment by Israel's occupation forces. Occupied Palestine has become the biggest concentration camp in the world, with over 1.3 million Palestinians condemned to lives of deprivation and disease as a direct result of the occupation.

There is growing concern amongst international observers that Israel is deliberately targeting Palestinian children in terror attacks. There are currently almost 400 Palestinian children locked away in Israeli jails and since the present uprising, a total of 651 children have been murdered by Israeli forces. Since September 2000, almost 400 Palestinians have been murdered in "assassination" attacks, including 25 women and 36 children. In just one month, March 2004, a total of 21 Palestinian children were murdered by the Israeli Defence Force.

Many international figures are convinced that Israel is pursuing a policy of genocide against the Palestinians.

The Israelis have a long history of terror. The state of Israel was founded by terrorists such as the Stern gang and the Irgun group following a terror campaign against the British and the Palestinian Arabs. But, state terrorism will never lead to peace. The Israelis have superior fire power with their tanks and helicopter gunships, while the Palestinians have only their bodies, and their lives to sacrifice for their cause of freedom. Far from being terrorists, the Palestinians are freedom fighters who will die rather than surrender to Israeli state terrorism. They deserve our support. Victory to the Palestinian people!

London NF Stop Preacher of Hate

London-based members of the National Front shocked both police and local shoppers when in a well planned move they occupied the site used by radical Islamic preacher Abu Hamza for his weekly torrents of hate against the West.

The NF members occupied the street in Finsbury Park, North London to prevent Hamza from speaking. Police called for assistance and eventually some 2000 officers attended, many in riot gear. The NF protesters were soon separated from Hamza's masked and hooded supporters but, apart from some verbal exchanges between the two groups there was no trouble. Dozens of passers-by stopped to cheer the NF's protest.

London Court Refuses War Crimes Warrant

District Judge Christopher Pratt, sitting at Bow Street magistrate's court refused to issue an arrest warrant for the visiting Israeli Defence Minister, Shaul Mofaz, ruling he had diplomatic immunity during his visit to Britain.

The Judge ruled that the immunity against arrest or prosecution enjoyed by diplomats and heads of State should be extended to include the former Chief of Staff of the Israeli Defence Forces. The application for the arrest warrant had been sought by a law firm representing Palestinians exiled in Britain who presented a dossier of alleged crimes against humanity for which they claimed Mofaz was responsible.

In future arrest warrants for war crimes and crimes against humanity may be issued by the newly established International Criminal Court. The ICC does not give immunity to heads of state where war crimes are alleged.

BNP Plan to Use 25 Million Leaflets in Election Battle

The British National Party are printing 25 million election leaflets to use in the forthcoming European and local election campaigns. The party launched its South-East European election campaign with a press conference on the banks of the Thames beside the Magna Carta memorial at Runnymede. The BNP are fielding ten Euro parliamentary candidates as well as contesting eleven seats on the Greater London Authority.

Union Boss Links BNP to Auschwitz

Roger Lyons, the president of the Trades Union Congress and an executive member of the Trades Unions Friends of Israel has promised to encourage all trade unionists to campaign against the British National Party, following his experiences on a recent trip to the wartime prison camp, Auschwitz. According to Mr Lyons, "After being at Auschwitz and Birkenau I couldn't live with myself if I didn't do all I can to prevent this". Mr Lyons described the BNP as being "supporters of the final solution".

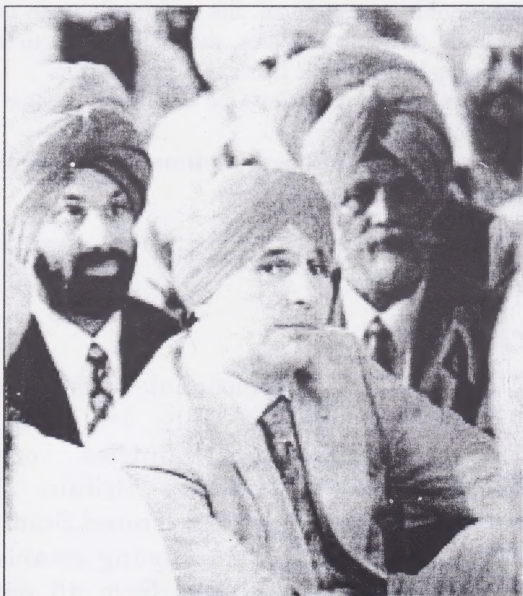

Auschwitz

Lyons is a long standing member of the Trade Union Friends of Israel and went on the day trip as a guest of the Holocaust Educational Trust.

Tories Increase the Number of Jewish Parliamentary Candidates

The Conservative Party, now led by Michael Howard, a practicing Jew, has increased the number of Jewish prospective parliamentary candidates by two with the selection of Malcolm Rifkin as the candidate for Kensington and Chelsea, and its first Orthodox candidate, David Ashton to represent Harrow.

Mr Letwin appears unaware that Jews don't wear turbans

Shortly after the appointment of Howard as leader, the shadow Home Secretary Oliver Letwin, who is also Jewish, commented that perhaps the party should be renamed the "Torah" party because of the disproportionately high number of shadow cabinet members who are Jewish.

Board of Deputies sued by Palestinian Charity

The Board of Deputies of British Jews, a propaganda department of the Israeli state according to some sources, is to face a libel action from the Palestinian registered charity INTERPAL following allegations made on the Board's website that it was a terrorist organisation with links to the Palestinian freedom fighters, Hamas. An investigation by the Charity Commission into INTERPAL's activities concluded that there were no links between the two groups.

INTERPAL is a non-political, non-profit making British charity that focuses solely on the provision of relief and development aid to the poor and needy of Palestine. Its main areas of operation are in Gaza, the West Bank and the refugee camps in Jordan and the Lebanon.

The Board of Deputies is an unelected group which states as one of its aims as being to further the interests of the state of Israel.

The Board of Deputies were quick to lead a torrent of criticism aimed at Foreign Secretary, Jack Straw for his condemnation of Israel's murder of the elderly, quadriplegic clergyman, Sheikh Yassin. The president of the Board of Deputies, Henry Grunwald, a solicitor, appeared to be ignorant of International law in trying to justify the murder of the wheelchair bound cleric as "self-defence".

Kilroy to Stand as UKIP Candidate

Robert Kilroy-Silk, who was sacked by the BBC over "politically incorrect" comments made on his chat show has joined the UK Independence Party and will stand as a UKIP candidate in the forthcoming European elections. Kilroy will be standing in the East Midlands. It will certainly be embarrassing for the BBC if Kilroy is elected. The UKIP have also engaged the services of the high profile PR consultant, Max Clifford. Clifford normally represents footballers and film stars.

IRAQ WAR SPECIAL

Is Blair a War Criminal?

As British Prime Minister, Tony Blair announces that he is committing more British troops to the occupation of Iraq a group of international lawyers have laid charges of war crimes against the British government in the International Criminal Court.

The old saying "there are no rules in love or war" does not stand up in legal terms. There are rules about the conduct of war and the reasons for going to war. Blair lied in Parliament when he told the nation's representatives that Saddam Hussein "has weapons of mass destruction which can be ready for use in 45 minutes". But, if he really believed this was so then why, a prosecutor might ask, did coalition troops bomb houses and Tony Blair: War Criminal? places of worship in Iraq instead of just military facilities, factories and warehouses?

If, Saddam's alleged WMD's were Blair's prime, and legally only concern, then why did coalition troops bomb a restaurant in Baghdad in the hope of killing Saddam's two sons, and why were Iraqi television stations bombed? Were they concealing WMD's? If the court were to believe that the main object of making war on Iraq was not the elimination of WMD's but to bring about a change of regime, this would be clearly illegal.

If the aim of attacking Iraq was to capture and destroy weapons of mass destruction why were tons of anti-personnel cluster bombs dropped on civilians in Iraq killing in excess of 10,000 men, women and children?

In warfare it is incumbent on both sides to do their utmost to avoid civilian casualties. So why did the coalition forces drop "bunker-buster" bombs on private dwellings and places of worship where civilians were taking shelter? Before taking Britain into this war Blair sought the legal opinion of the Attorney-General, the highest law officer in the land. Blair assured Britain that the Attorney-General vindicated the decision to attack Iraq. But, Blair has consistently refused to publish the Attorney-General's full ruling. Why?

Although the United States would not be affected by any verdict if the case comes to court, Britain could be found guilty of conspiracy with the United States for illegal acts, and there are many, committed by US forces.

The ICC will be under immense pressure to investigate complaints of war crimes against Blair and his government. This will be the first test of the new court and if it fails to act against a nation that was one of its proposers, then it will lose credibility, possibly forever.

As the ICC is a new body, it has no precedents of its own regarding sentencing etc and would have to rely on precedents set by a similar organisation, the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY). This was established specifically to judge allegations of war crimes committed during the conflict in that country.

The longest sentence the ICC can impose is that of life imprisonment. The "life term" was clarified by the ICTY as being 45 years, this being the sentence given to the Bosnian Croat general, Tihomir Blaskic, for "violations of the laws of war", exactly the charge that Blair could face!

The ICC, which operates under the European Unions "Treaty of Rome" first charges the signatory state to investigate any complaints itself. Under the British constitution this responsibility would fall to the Attorney-General but, as the Attorney-General could be viewed as "tainted" because of his alleged involvement in the decision making process which led us into war, then the ICC would have no other choice than to prosecute the case themselves.

Unlike the "victors" justice handed out by the victorious to the vanquished at Nuremburg after WW2, now the victors can themselves be held accountable for their criminal actions and brought to justice.

Blair and his government have the blood of British servicemen and women on their hands. They have the blood of innocent Iraqi men, women and children on their hands. They have dragged the noble reputation of this country down to that of a puppet-state of the United States, sacrificing lives to appease the hidden agenda of George Bush and his "advisors".

For these crimes they deserve to be brought to justice and to face long sentences if convicted.

Our nation and the innocent victims in Iraq deserve at least that.

The International Criminal Court came into operation on July 1st 2002. One hundred and thirty-nine countries voted to establish the court including Britain. Seven countries including China, the United States and Israel voted against the court being established. The court has eighteen judges from all parts of the world, including seven female judges. The court is based in The Hague.

IRAQ WAR SPECIAL

Hans Blix: the Iraq War Was Illegal

The former United Nations chief weapons inspector, Hans Blix has infuriated Tony Blair and George Bush by claiming that the war on Iraq was illegal under UN rules. Mr Blix, who qualified as a lawyer specialising in International Law told a specially convened press conference at the UN headquarters in New York that another United Nations resolution was needed specifically authorising military force to legitimise the war.

Blix: demands for his return

Mr Blix also dismisses the advice allegedly given to Blair by the British Attorney-General, Lord Goldsmith that UN resolution 1441 authorised the use of force.

Blix pointed out that while it was possible to argue that Iraq had breached the terms of the 1991 ceasefire, and in doing so violated a UN resolution on the matter, the "ownership" of enforcing the resolution on the ceasefire rested with the entire 15-member Security Council and not with individual states such as Britain or the US.

"It is the Security Council that is party to the ceasefire agreement, not the UK and US individually. Therefore it is the Security Council that has ownership of the ceasefire and it is that Council that needed to authorise a new war. This did not happen and therefore the war was illegal under International law".

For some mysterious reason the British government have continually refused to release the full legal opinion given by Lord Goldsmith to the Prime Minister. A summary of the opinion has been released in which it is claimed that the Attorney-General advised that resolution 1441 did authorise the use of force against Iraq, and that a specific UN mandate was not needed to authorise military action.

In documents released by the British Foreign Office it is clear that their legal expert's opinion differed from that of Lord Goldsmith. In the FO's opinion resolution 1441 did not "automatically" justify war.

Although efforts are being made to bring Blair and his co-conspirator, George Bush to justice, public opinion could ultimately be the weapon that destroys both Prime Minister Blair and his crony, the Attorney-General.

Bad Advice? Lord Goldsmith

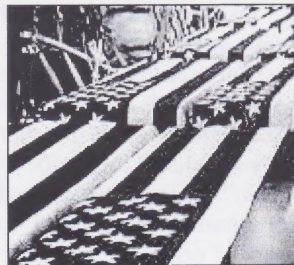

US Official Admits "Iraq War Launched to Protect Israel"

An amazing admission that the war on Iraq was launched to protect Israel rather than to protect US security has been made by Philip Zelikow, the executive-director of the 9/11 commission which is investigating the terror attacks on the United States in September 2001.

In a speech to a panel of foreign policy experts gathered at the prestigious University of Virginia, Zelikow stated, "Why would Iraq attack America or use nuclear weapons against us? The real threat is against Israel".

Zelikow went on to explain that the Saddam Hussein regime had been developing the technology to disrupt the accurate deployment of nuclear weapons. The only state in the region with nuclear weapons is Israel! He also suggested that it was believed that Iraq was developing low-grade biological weapons with the intent of supplying them to the Islamic Resistance Movement (Hamas). The target for these weapons would not be the United States, but Israel.

Zelikow was formerly a member of the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board (PFIAB) which evaluates the work of all the US intelligence agencies including the CIA as well as the various military intelligence agencies that are operated by the US government. Zelikow is regarded a "hawk" within the administration and supports wholeheartedly the US attacks and the subsequent occupation of Iraq.

In both Britain and the United States, the theory that Iraq was attacked to protect Israel has only been raised by a few intellectuals and writers, but in the light of this staggering admission from a Bush loyalist surely more prominent media figures will have the courage to challenge Bush to come clean over the cause that has taken hundreds of US service personnel's lives already, with more dying daily.

The people have a right to know.

ENOCH POWELL: Right or Wrong?

Thirty six years ago, on the 20th of April 1968, the Conservative MP for Wolverhampton South West, and a member of the Tory shadow cabinet, Mr Enoch Powell, made a speech that was both prophetic, and divisive, splitting almost the entire nation into pro and anti Powell camps. Now, thirty-six years later we examine Mr Powell's speech, his prophecy and his legacy to British politics.

Whether Mr Powell deliberately chose to make his speech on what he considered to be the dangers of continued mass immigration into the British Isles just days before St George's day we shall never know but, what should have been a low key speech delivered at the annual meeting of the West Midlands Conservative Association in Birmingham, made news headlines throughout the world and ultimately cost Mr Powell his political career.

Enoch Powell

Christened by the media, the "River of Blood" speech, Mr Powell related to the audience a recent conversation he had had with a constituent, a middle-aged working man, who told his MP, "If I had the money to go, I wouldn't stay in this country ... In this country in fifteen or twenty years time, the black man will have the whip hand over the white man".

Powell acknowledged that his comments would bring accusations that he was trying to stir up trouble and inflame feelings and defended himself against such accusations by saying, "what he {the constituent} is saying, thousands and hundreds of thousands are saying and thinking".

Mr Powell went on to warn his audience of the vast numbers of Commonwealth immigrants flooding into Britain. "In 15 to 20 years, on present trend, there will be in this country three and a half million Commonwealth immigrants and their descendants. In the year 2000, in the region of five to seven million. These will not be evenly distributed, but whole areas, towns and parts of towns will be occupied by sections of the immigrant population".

How prophetic was this statement. In many British towns and cities, including Powell's own constituency of Wolverhampton, the white inhabitants are the minority.

To help combat the problem Mr Powell called for a complete halt to further immigration from Commonwealth countries into Britain immediately and urged the Labour government to adopt and implement what amazingly was then the official Conservative policy, of "re-immigration". This policy offered generous financial assistance to immigrants who wished to leave Britain and return to their country of origin. A term later converted to voluntary repatriation.

Powell also condemned government proposals to introduce legislation against "discrimination" (the Race Relations Act) instead of facing the problems that mass immigration had brought to Britain. He warned fellow politicians that to ignore the problem by "pulling the bedclothes over their heads" was as dangerous "as throwing a match on to gunpowder".

But of course they ignored his warning and introduced legislation which in one foul swoop ended a Briton's rights to free speech that had been in place since the signing of the Magna Carta in June 1215.

Powell felt that the native Britons would view the proposed new law as one which could not, and was not, intended to operate to protect them or redress their grievances, but would only operate to protect the stranger in our lands.

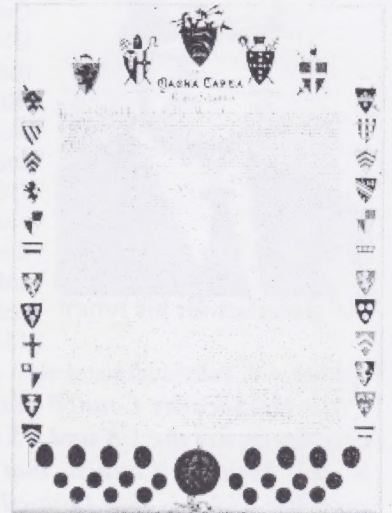

Now, thirty-six years later we can acknowledge how accurate his prophecy was. Britons today are frightened into silence for fear of imprisonment for the crime of speaking their minds.

Mr Powell also explained that already ordinary people were afraid of the perceived consequences, penalties or reprisals of openly expressing support for his policies by omitting their names and addresses on letters sent to him. He felt that "the feeling of being a persecuted minority is growing among ordinary English people".

In this emotive speech Powell warned the attending media that the native population of Britain would not understand why their wives could no longer obtain hospital beds in childbirth, why their children could not obtain school places, why their homes and neighbourhoods changed beyond recognition and a decision on which they had never been consulted, "made them strangers in their own country".

The MP for Wolverhampton then related the experiences of one of his constituents, an elderly woman who lived alone. In just eight years the street in which the woman lived had changed from being predominantly white to almost exclusively black. In fact, she was the only white person now living in the street.

"She is becoming afraid to go out. Her windows are broken. She finds excreta pushed through her letter box. When she goes to the shops she is followed by wide-grinning piccaninnies who know only one word of English. Racist they chant at her"

Powell also attacked those immigrants to Britain who refused to even attempt to integrate into British society. While acknowledging the difficulties of a black immigrant to become "indistinguishable" from other Britons, he condemned those who refused to attempt to integrate. He singled out the growing Sikh community as one group who refused to integrate and condemned their attitude with these words. "The Sikh communities' campaign to maintain customs inappropriate in Britain is much to be regretted. Even today, thirty-six years later, the Sikh community is allowed special privileges not granted to native Britons!"

Mr Powell ended his speech with a renewed attack on the proposed Race Relations Bill, viewing it as the most single cause for future disharmony between Britons and immigrants. He felt that the bill was "the means of showing that the immigrant communities can organise to consolidate their members, to agitate and campaign against their fellow citizens. As I look ahead, I am filled with foreboding; like the Roman, I seem to see the River Tiber foaming with much blood. All I know that to see, and not to speak, would be the great betrayal".

These final few words of his speech were immediately seized upon by a rabid media, who attack Powell as a racist, and called for his prosecution for incitement.

The leader of the opposition Conservative party, Ted Heath immediately dismissed Powell from the shadow cabinet and overnight he became a figure of hate for the left and liberals. The Times even called his speech evil, but amazingly, the British working class backed Powell and his views.

The Racial Harmony Council will discuss the speech as an emergency item tonight when a resolution is expected to be tabled calling for it to be reported to the Race Relations Board.

Factories

to support
Powell

April 24

Two thousand dock workers at London's St Katherine docks and Tilbury docks, not exactly the heartland of Conservative support, walked out in protest over the dismissal of Mr Powell from the shadow cabinet saying it was an attack on the British right to free speech. They were then joined by colleagues from London's West India docks, paralysing imports and exports. London's Smithfield meat market was closed when hundreds of workers walked out in support of Mr Powell. In an unprecedented move, three hundred London Dockers invaded the Central lobby of the House of Commons, while hundreds of others marched outside to protest against the government's proposed Race Relations Bill. Up and down the country workers stopped and impromptu banners were displayed with slogans "I'm backing Enoch" "Powell is right!"

Despite this popular support Enoch Powell never returned to government. Nor, as history shows were his warnings heeded.

Thirty-six years on, Britain is still being flooded with immigrants. No government has had the courage to introduce "re-immigration" and in many of our towns and cities the immigrant and his descendants are the ethnic majority.

Enoch Powell lost his battle for free speech, and successive British patriots have suffered intimidation and even imprisonment for expressing their views. In many parts of the country there is racial strife and whites are more and more becoming the victims of racial violence.

Was Enoch Powell right? What do you think?

"As I look ahead, I am filled with foreboding; like the Roman, I seem to see the River Tiber foaming with much blood".

France

Front National Maintain Support in Regional Elections

The French Nationalist party, Front National maintained its support in the recent first round of regional elections. FN support was expected by many pundits to drop dramatically following the government's adoption of some of the FN's most popular policies. Despite a massive smear campaign against the FN and its leadership the party managed to average 15% of votes cast. This still makes the FN the third largest party in France, much larger than the sanitised Communists and the Green party.

It was anticipated that the decision by a French court to ban the party leader, Jean-Marie Le Pen from standing in the Provence Alpes-Cote-d'Azur region which includes FN strongholds such as Marseille and Nice, would inflict far greater damage on the FN than was achieved. Mr Le Pen's daughter, Marine, saw her personal vote in the Ile de France, drop 3.5%, but still managed a respectable 12.5%. Marine Le Pen (pictured right) is mother to four children and as a trained corporate lawyer; she is in charge of the FN's legal department. She also plays a leading part in Generations Le Pen a FN project established to recruit new young members into the party. Marine is widely viewed to succeed her father as party leader and wants to encourage the FN's five million voters into being proud rather than embarrassed that they voted FN. "FN voters must be proud that they vote just not for the Front National, but they vote for France. For our nation, our culture and our identity". She said in a recent interview.

The highly influential Jewish lobby in France is being blamed for putting pressure on French film distributors not to distribute Mel Gibson's controversial film, The Passion of Christ". Despite the massive audience response in the United States to the film no French distributor was initially willing to handle the film, and several admitted that they had been asked by "religious groups" to boycott it. The film finally premiered in Paris to a full house.

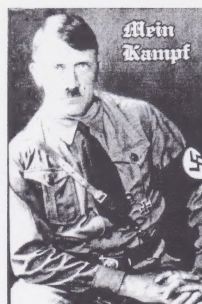

French Muslims, were so incensed by the actions of a Jewish lobby group, CRIF in preventing a Palestinian speaker from addressing a debate on the Middle-East held in Nice, that they vetoed a series of planned school trips to Auschwitz from the region claiming that they were "politically motivated".

New "self-defence" Law Welcomed in Italy

In the wake of an unprecedented wave of violent attacks on Italian householders and shop owners, the Italian government is rushing through new legislation which will give the victims the right to defend themselves "by any means necessary". This right will include the right to shoot and kill intruders without fear of prosecution. The wave of violent attacks has been mainly committed by gangs of illegal immigrants and bogus asylum seekers. The proposed changes to legislation was first instigated by the nationalist, Movimento Sociale Italiano (MSI) party and was so popular that the government have decided to implement it themselves.

Dutch to Expel Bogus Asylum Seekers

The Dutch government, eager to prove that the Netherlands are no longer a soft-touch for illegal immigrants and bogus asylum seekers have voted to expel all asylum seekers whose claims are ruled to be unfounded.

The Christian-Democrat led coalition government approved the new policy by 83 votes to 57, although the official CD party policy was to grant an amnesty before making any changes to legislation. The new law will mean the introduction of deportation centres where failed asylum seekers will be held until deportation can be arranged. A total of 26,000 failed asylum seekers will be deported over the next three years. Those who refuse to leave will be transferred from the deportation centres to prison. The impetus for change has been led by the radical populist party, List Pim Fortuyn whose charismatic founder, Pim Fortuyn was murdered by an anti-Fascist just before the last general election in 2002.

As Dutch politics change from being extreme Liberal to becoming more nationalistic a new party has emerged. The Nationale Alliantie (National Alliance) is an openly racial-nationalist organisation which pledges to purge their country of its "sick, multi-racial and criminal society". The NA has adopted a Viking shield as their party emblem as it stands for "protection". Protection of our folk and country, protection of our language, values and tradition. We are going to take our country back!

Grieving Mother Condemns Iraq War

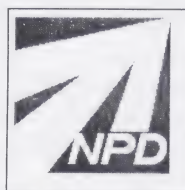

The mother of a soldier killed in Iraq while trying to defuse a bomb has condemned US President Bush claiming "My son died for absolutely nothing". Seth Dvorin, who was Jewish was in the lead truck in a convoy when he spotted what he thought was a roadside bomb. As he tried to defuse it the bomb detonated killing the soldier instantly.

On receiving her son's body back in the United States the soldier's mother alleged "Seth died for President Bush's personal vendetta. Bush put us where we should never have been. We're not even in a declared war". Mrs Niederer joins a growing list of grieving families condemning US foreign policy in Iraq.

Germany

Nationalists Protest Against Wehrmacht Smear Campaign

German nationalists, led by members of the Nationaldemokratische Partei Deutschlands (NDP) continued their campaign against the smearing of their wartime army the Wehrmacht as war criminals with a march and rally in Hamburg.

The target of their campaign was an exhibition, "The Crimes of the Wehrmacht" which has been touring Germany and attempting to blame ordinary German soldiers for "war crimes". German nationalists have been following the exhibition and have staged demonstrations in every town and village that the exhibition has visited. At times this has meant marching and demonstrating every weekend without a break since 1999.

Over 5000 Communists and anti-Fascists tried to stop the estimated 1500 nationalist protestors but were well contained by the judicious use of batons and water-cannon wielded by the Hamburg police.

Canada

Ernst Zundel Still in Custody

Political prisoner Ernst Zundel is still being held in custody awaiting the outcome of his deportation hearing. The Canadian authorities allege that Mr Zundel could pose a security threat if allowed to remain in Canada, but refuse to explain their reasoning for arriving at such a conclusion.

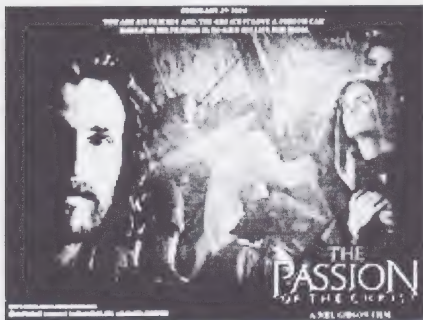

The latest setback for Mr Zundel came when a witness he called to give evidence on his behalf refused to attend court. Even more amazing is the witness is an Ontario District Judge!

Lauren Marshall was for a time in the 1980's one of Mr Zundel's legal advisors and like Mr Zundel was physically attacked by members of the Jewish Defence League. Her evidence is important for Mr Zundel whose legal team are attempting to show to the deportation hearing that their client is a victim rather than a perpetrator of violence. Mr Zundel's legal team accused Judge Marshal of being pressurised by "outside influences".

Passionate Reaction to Mel Gibson Film

The film industry is not known for its accuracy in portraying events as it is weighed down by two important aspects. One is profit. Nobody wants to make a film that loses money. The other is entertainment. Most cinema goers want to be entertained, not educated. The American actor and director, Mel Gibson has caused a storm by deliberately bucking this trend. In his new film, The Passion Gibson attempts to educate his audience rather than just show a profit on his investment. This alone caused disquiet amongst those that control the film industry, particularly in the United States.

Hollywood, the film making capital of the world, is still dominated by Jewish owners and producers. Steven Spielberg is just one big player worth mentioning. So when Mel Gibson comes looking for finance to produce a film about the last twelve hours of the life of Jesus Christ, and announces the actors will speak all of their parts in Aramaic, an ancient language with English sub-titles, the project did not seem at all financially viable. And Gibson was told as much. When it was discovered that the historical part that the Jews of the day played in the death of Christ, the Jewish establishment went mad, accusing Gibson of anti-Semitism even before the film had started production. Gibson, a dedicated Christian was undeterred and invested 25 million US dollars of his own money and produced the film.

Such is the power of organised Jewry; the noise they made about the film reverberated throughout the world, and gave the film more publicity than Gibson could have bought!

Predictably the Jewish community worldwide condemned the film. In the US, Abe Foxman (photo below) of the Anti-Defamation League, a Jewish organisation linked to terrorism, led protests against the film and urged cinema goers to boycott the film. Jewish groups wearing imitation concentration camp uniforms demonstrated against the film in New York and tried to interrupt the screening. This resulted in an unprecedented number of militant Christians to go to the cinema, many for the first time in decades. US cinemas had to arrange extra showings to satisfy public demand.

In Europe the head of the Catholic Church, the Pope was given a private showing of the film in the Vatican and declared that it was as accurate as it could be. "It is as it was" was the Pope's comments, reported a Vatican official to the media. The Catholic Church's approval gave a massive boost to the film in cinemas throughout Europe.

In Britain, prominent Jews voiced their disapproval of the film. Neville Nagler of the Board of Deputies complained that medieval stereotyping of the Jewish people is dangerous. (It proved fatal to Jesus). Labour MP Gerald Kaufman, who chairs the parliamentary culture, media and sports committee, described the film as "crude anti-Semitism". In an interview on GMTV, Kaufman, who likes to think he is in some way important, was reported to have said "People who do not know the story will see it as the Jews wanting to murder this saintly man, while the Roman ruler didn't want to do it".

Greville Janner, the British-based vice President of the World Jewish Congress said "I am extremely concerned that this film depicts Jews as a blood-thirsty, taunting angry mob".

The Catholic hierarchy, bolstered by the Pope's approval, leapt to the defence of the film, taking under their wing as if they had produced it themselves. The leader of the Catholic Church in Britain, Cardinal Cormac Murphy O'Connor praised the film as "being a very positive and faithful account of the Gospels".

The Catholic Bishops Conference declared they would "be concerned if the Jewish community took offence to the film".

The British media exploited the dissension between the two groups for all they were worth. It was truly a story made in heaven!

Catholic and Evangelical churches block-booked cinema seats and Passionmania swept Britain.

Gibson could not have planned the publicity campaign. On its first days showing the film grossed £16 million. In just five days it made £68 million. Gibson's worldwide earnings are now expected to exceed £160 million. All because of Jewish intransigence.

Anti-Nazis, of which Jews make up a large section, have often advised against giving their political opponents "the oxygen of publicity". How some of their co-religionists must wish that they had taken that advice!

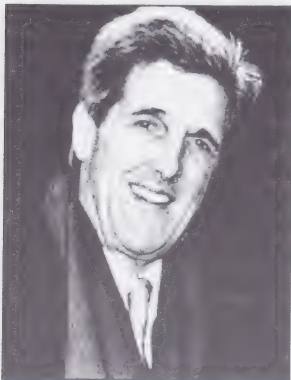

One of the most valid comments throughout this controversy came from a member of the French Jewish community who said, "But surely people will realise that the actions of those Jews of the time should not equate with the Jews of today. We had nothing to do with it".

Yes, and in Jewish eyes that would also apply to the Holocaust and the Germans of today, wouldn't it?

US Democratic Party Presidential Candidates Play the "Kosher Card"

Three out of four of the main Candidates contesting the recent Democratic primaries unashamedly played the "Jewish card" during their campaigns. This despite there only being some six million Jews living in the US, (yes! Six million) most of them concentrated in just a handful of states.

Front runner and eventual winner, John Kerry, although a practicing Catholic took the trouble to reveal early in his campaign that his paternal grandfather, Fritz was Jewish and it was he who changed the family name from Kohn to Kerry on arrival in the United States. John Kerry also revealed that his eldest son was studying to convert to Judaism.

The liberal candidate is regarded as a staunch supporter of Israel with a track record of voting accordingly.

John Kerry (Kohn)

The early favourite to win the primary race, Howard Dean is Christian but he made much of the fact that he was happily married to the prominent Jewess, Dr Judy Steinberg.

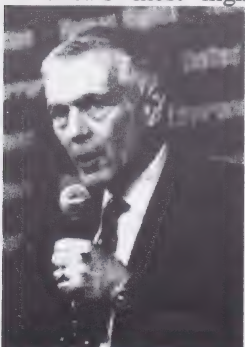

Dr Steinburg accompanied her husband throughout the campaign and was forthright in revealing that their family celebrated both Christian and Jewish religious festivals at home. This obviously failed to impress many non-Jewish voters and may have alienated some Christian ones as despite this obvious appeal for support from the Jewish lobby.

Dean failed miserably towards the end of the campaign.

Mr Steinburg

A late entrant to the race, General Wesley Clark was the former supreme commander of US Forces in Europe and one of America's most highly decorated soldiers. But far from reminding voters of his distinguished military career and presenting himself as the military hero he undoubtedly was, Clark preferred to remind voters that although a practising Southern Baptist his family name was Kanne and he was "the oldest son of the oldest son of at least five generations of rabbis".

Wes Clark. (Kanne)

Joe Lieberman

Lieberman gained little support this time and withdrew from the race early on.

What makes attracting the Jewish vote so vital to a successful candidate is not Jewish numerical strength, but the vast amounts of money organised Jewry can donate to a candidate's campaign fund. Millions of dollars are needed to mount a successful Presidential campaign and the Jewish lobby often donate vast sums of money to both sides so as to be sure of being seen to back the eventual winner. It is a precondition for all candidates to be fully supportive of Israel before any donations are made via the dozens of pro-Israeli support groups.

The eventual winner, the new President, is expected to give prominent positions in his new administration to Jewish or certainly pro-Israel officials. This practice was evident in both the Clinton and Bush administrations.

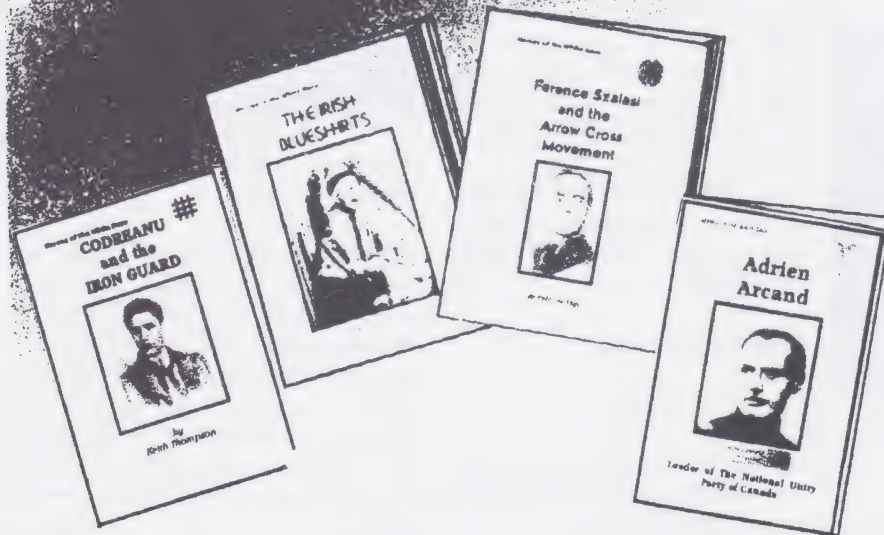

George Bush Jnr, the current President of the United States of Israel, swears allegiance to Zionism and promises to continue to donate millions of US dollars to keep the terrorist state in business. He also swears to only employ pro-Zionist advisors in the most important positions within his administration.

The next President will have to do the same.

League Sentinel: NEWS EXTRA

After we went to print several important issues arose, therefore we decided to print a special news extra page. By the time most subscribers read this, polling day will be upon us and, the first issue is the massive anti-BNP campaign that has been launched by the media and others, none of who have enough courage of their convictions to stand candidates of their own. There is only one sure way to defeat them...

MAKE SURE YOU CAST YOUR VOTE ON JUNE 10th

Although other nationalist parties are standing candidates in various areas, the BNP has been targeted for the worse smear campaign seen for many years. Not only have they had to contend with biased, incorrect reporting from national newspapers such as the Daily Mail, but also campaigns urging voters not to vote BNP by undemocratic organisations such as elements of the Church of England, the Board of Deputies of British Jews, the Union of Jewish Students and of course, the criminal gang, Searchlight! One Daily Mail article, published just six days before polling day, is a prime example. The Mail reported "the BNP hosted Jean-Marie Le Pen on a violence-tainted pre-election tour of England last month". The Mail deliberately chose to ignore that the violence was caused by members of the Unite Against Fascism gang which is supported by several Labour MPs!

The same article used information supplied by Searchlight (who they erroneously called SPOTLIGHT) to highlight the criminal convictions of some BNP members. Nowhere in the article did it mention that their source, Searchlight, also has members with criminal convictions for theft and extreme violence! Whatever happened to "unbiased" reporting?

We understand that the BNP are already mounting several legal challenges under the legislation that covers elections, the Representation of the Peoples Act, and we wish them well with this. But, the only way to defeat the liars, thugs and cheats who seek to undermine the democratic process is to make sure that you and your friends and family, GET OUT AND CAST YOUR VOTE!

D-DAY COMMEMORATION

Like many of our readers I sat and watched the D-Day commemorations with mixed feelings. Intensely proud of the bravery and fortitude of Britons who fought in a war that they were told was a just cause. Proud of those heroes who ignored their own safety often just to gain a few yards of French soil, and proud of those who made the ultimate sacrifice.

But what now of those heroes? They are the generation that has become the prime target of the muggers and thugs now occupying Britain from the Third World. While the nation commemorates their individual acts of heroism, local councils persecute our heroes for continuing to be patriots, on every day of the year.

Yes, our heroes liberated France, only to see it re-occupied by North Africans and others. Yes, our heroes prevented our Island home being occupied by German troops, but it is occupied, by Asians, Africans, West Indians and the scum of the Balkans.

Apart from Ceremonial occasions such as Remembrance Day and D-Day, when politicians and minor Royals treat the event as a useful photographic opportunity, our heroes are ignored, or at best, treated with contempt. Even Prince Andrew, the son of our forces Commander in Chief, and the honorary Colonel of no less than six Army regiments prefers to attend a golfing dinner than the memorial services in Normandy for those that laid down their lives for Britain.

Was their sacrifice really worthwhile?

Shortly after League Sentinel went for printing we heard of the sad death of GRAHAM JOHN.

Graham had been dedicated to the nationalist movement for most of his adult life. In his time he had been an electoral candidate for both the National Front and the BNP, last standing for the BNP as a local council candidate in May 2003.

For many years Graham was associated with the League of St George and assisted Steven Books in many ways.

Up until the time of his death Graham was an enthusiastic believer in Christian Identity and operated his own website on the subject.

He will be sadly missed
